In international promotion of UN session

Kiln Annunciation clergy to assist peace marchers

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Clergy of Annunciation Catholic Parish in Kiln Jan. 12 will host six people participating in a World Peace March beginning in New Orleans Friday and concluding at the United Nations Building in New York City on June 7.

Sister Jean Harvey, OP, of Annunciation this week revealed that four Japanese Buddhist monks and two Danish citizens will set out from New Orleans as one of two United States groups which will meet in New York for the Second UN Special Session on Disarmament.

"The march is in support of the session to promote disarmament and world peace. This is nonviolent. International religious expression of a belief in peace and a desire for nuclear disarmament," Harvey stated.

She said the other group began walking from California on Oct. 24.

The New Orleans group will walk to Baton Rouge, La., and then to Slidell by Jan. 12 where a prayer service is scheduled at 12:30 p.m. at a yet to be announced location.

Harvey explained that due to highway hazards, the marchers will be brought by automobile from Slidell to Kiln where they will stay overnight at the Parish Center then begin their march at about 8 a.m. the following day at the intersection of Hwy. 603 and US-90 in Waveland.

The group will walk eastward along US-90 to Mobile, Ala., then turn north on an indirect route through major southeastern and eastern cities.

Harvey said the idea for the transcontinental marches resulted from an Asia peace conference in Japan.

"The Japanese have experienced the results of nuclear war more keenly than any other nation. That is why they have taken the initiative in this peace effort," she explained.

The Kiln nun said people are encouraged to march with the six as they walk through the area.

She reported that Mayor John Longo of Waveland and Larry Bennett of Bay St. Louis and Sheriff Ronald A.

Peterson of Hancock County have all agreed to provide police escorts for the marchers as they proceed through the area.

"The marchers will pray and chant along the entire route until they reach New York," Harvey stated.

Sister Mary Richard, MSET, also of Annunciation, noted that all the parish's nuns meet every Sunday from 8-9 p.m. to pray for world peace.

"Part of our prayer is educating ourselves regarding world peace," she stated.

"Another purpose of the peace march is to ask all countries to stop terrorism by left and right-wing factions," she reported.

Richard said although the National Conference of Catholic Bishops has not formally endorsed the march, the organization recently voted to oppose worldwide nuclear proliferation.

Regarding the marchers, Harvey noted, "We speak so much of peace, but here are people doing something to promote it."

She said Buddhist religious restrictions forbid the monks from buying or begging for food, but by virtue of their religion will depend on and will accept donations of food to survive.

Harvey reported the Buddhists are vegetarians, but will eat any food offered.

"If food is not available the monks will fast," she said.

Harvey also noted that if the monks are assaulted in any way, their religion requires that they kneel and pray.

"No slogans can be used to promote this march, it is just an effort to promote peace and disarmament," she stated.

"We have notified all churches in Hancock and West Harrison Counties and people are urged to join the march or participate in some way," Harvey reported.

The nuns said persons wishing to assist in the march may telephone 255-1894.

County UW tops campaign goal

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County United Way executive director said the campaign was a success.

Conrad Mauntry of Bay St. Louis, United Way executive director, said pledges and contributions total $111,111.

The fund-raising campaign was extended two additional months at the end of October by the United Way Board of Directors when contributions fell several thousand dollars short of the goal.

Since that time, contributions from several new local businesses and organizations boosted campaign collections.

At one week ago, the campaign was $2,000 short of $100,000, but $1,375 in payroll deduction pledges from employees of DeChambeau in Waveland Friday afternoon brought collections within $700 of the goal.

Mauntry said several regular contributors donated this week added campaign collections over the $40,000 mark.

Pat Harrell, UW campaign chairperson, Wednesday said, "I would like to express my sincere appreciation to everyone who so generously contributed to the campaign which enabled us to achieve our goal."

"As I stated at the beginning of the fund-raising drive, the United Way belongs to the people of Hancock County. We thank everyone for sharing our joy in helping others," Harrell stated.

"It has been an honor and a privilege to serve as your 1981 chairperson," she added.

HIGH adds social worker to staff

Hancock County Hospital has a new social worker, Gena Mentz.

Menz, formerly of the University of Mississippi, has been working at the hospital since last summer.

High officials said a woman thruout agencies we help support," Harrel said.

The United Way president noted that more than 100 local organizations and individuals serving the poor, young and old in the county.

"We want to thank all our friends throughout the county who contributed so generously and made it possible for us to reach our campaign goal," Harrel stated.

"The campaign was a success in involving contributions from several local businesses and industries," he added.

Hancock Youth Court clerk charged with embezzlement

By DALE MACEY

A Hancock County Youth Court clerk was arrested Tuesday morning, charged with the embezzlement of the court's restitution funds.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said LaNelle Dell Johnson, 21, of 794 Statehouse Drive in Bay St. Louis, was released on $1,500 bond the same day.

The trial hearing is set for Jan. 10 before Justice Court Judge John Chevia Jan. 22.

That date does not carry authority over funds, Peterson said.

He noted the restitution fund is an account established to hold money which convicted juveniles repay as restitution to the victims of their crimes.

Peterson said a co-worker of Johnson received from Johnson this week the reported money was missing.

He said Johnson is accused of taking

Circuit Clerk's office under investigation by audit department

By BRENT MACEY
A special investigation into operations of Hancock County Circuit Clerk Henry Ode's office is being conducted by the Mississippi Department of Audit.

District Attorney Albert Nuckles confirmed Tuesday that he is independently investigating possible reasons which prompted the action.

Mississippi Auditor of State Jim Jackson, director of the Department of Audit, said, "All I can confirm is that the DDA requested that we help him with his investigation."

At a recent meeting, the auditor gave the state environmental protection department a copy of the audit report.

Mississippi Department of Environment Protection Director of Environmental Quality James R. McRae said he is responsible for the audit report.

McRae said he had a copy of the audit report and was awaiting a copy of the audit report.

He said he had no comment on the audit report.

Beach road rip-rap slated for use at Bay Legion Pier

By BRENT MACEY

Rip-rap acquired in tearing up Beach Boulevard to begin repairs on the road in the near future will be used to help construct a breakwater around the boat launch ramp at the end of the American Legion Pier in Bay St. Louis.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors, who will undertake the road repair in January through a federal grant, agreed Monday to use the scrap material as rip-rap in pier improvement.

Larry Seal, engineer for Broadway and Seal of Picayune—project engineers—asked the supervisors where the rip-rap could be stored if it could not be utilized immediately when repair work begins.

The supervisors decided to store it at the closest most convenient place to deposit the chunks of concrete blocks.

After the meeting Seal said he expected to advertise for bids on the repair work in January.

He speculated the project, granted $20,000 in 75 percent matching funds from the federal government, could begin shortly after bids were accepted. He estimated work could be completed by March.

Total restoration of Beach Boulevard has been estimated at more than $1 million.

Since only $12,000 in county money is available, Seal said work would include renovating "the worst" sections of the road.

A section in Waveland just west of Waveland Avenue is slated to be repaired first.

Bert Colledge, Beat One supervisor, noted a section of Beach Boulevard from Clemons Harbor to Waveland. In his Beat was renovated two years ago and would not need repairing.

However, plans to repair the road in places from one end of Beach Boulevard to the other—from Clemons Harbor to Bay St. Louis—have been proposed by the federal government.

At the meeting Colledge requested the rip-rap be transported to Analee Inn where to help lay a base for a roadway that area.

However, Seal said the American Legion Pier at the foot of Washington Street in Beat Three would be the closest and most convenient area for the workers to transport the material.

After the meeting Beat Three Supervisor Sam Periclimen said the rip-rap will be used to extend the breakwater some 45 additional feet into the Gulf.

At a point some 27 feet from the current 100 foot breakwater, the breakwater will be curved back toward the beach for the final 10 feet. The wall will protect a boat launch at the pier from waves in the Gulf.

Periclimen said his crew will be using county equipment to construct the breakwater after the rip-rap is transported to the end of the pier.

Upon completion of the breakwater, a drag line will be used to dredge a channel in the protected area.

A dock will be constructed along the inside of the jetty, Periclimen added.

While county equipment and labor will be used for the work, Periclimen said the American Legion Post in the Bay might donate money for construction of the dock.

In other business, the board:

Agreed to advertise for bids for a computer in the County Chancery Clerk's office. E. Michael Nease, chancery clerk, said the computers will be used for county payroll tasks which is currently handled by a computer costing $400 a month. The computer may also be used for accounting services on investment program and the county docket, Nease said.

Approved a recommendation from Seal to accept the low bid of Bush Construction Co. Inc. for paving work of three roads in the county. The company bid on paving, shaping and compacting North Bayou Drive, Garfield Street and Harbor Drive for $15,490 each. A bid on Catalina Street was withdrawn upon a request by Seal.

Approved the second phase of a plan to construct High Point Town Houses in Diamondhead. Plans call for construction of 45 housing units in an area directly across County Club Drive from the Colony Club.

Accepted minutes of the City's Planning and Zoning Committee last meeting, which included a discussion between Committee members and developers of Bay Cove Marina, a 50-acre marina/townhouse project being constructed at the foot of Beach Boulevard near the mouth of the Mountain River. One of the project's developers, Larry Bennett, who was not present at the meeting.

In other business, the council accepted an alternative plan for construction of an animal shelter in Bay St. Louis subject to the removal of Mrs. Larry Bennett who was not present at the meeting.

Cal Dumestre, chairman of the Hancock County Animal Control Commission, explained the site currently proposed for construction of the shelter is on land slated to be included in a portion of the city's sewer system.

Current plans called for construction of the shelter on the southern edge of the city. A new location has been found.

The new plan presented by Dumestre to the council was the site selected for the western portion of a planned 100-unit residential development.

This is the third time the city has voted to relocate the proposed shelter.

At the meeting, several citizens expressed their support for the new location.

Commissioner John L. Johnson, who voted against the original proposal, said he Accepted the city's land rolls for new fiscal year. Assessed value of real and personal property, public utilities, and automobiles in Bay St. Louis revealed total assessed value in Waveland and Diamondhead city limits which can be taxed for school purposes totaled $101,145.

Approved to pay $10,000 to Hancock Insurance Agency for insurance of city vehicles for the 1985-86 year.

SPECIAL VISITOR—Members of the Bay Senior High Civics and Mississippi History Club hear a special audio presentation from Hancock County's State Representative J.P. Compreta who explained functions of Mississippi's state government. The group of 50 students co-sponsored by Mrs. Joyce Warner and Woody Alliston, BHS teacher, is another area where a little extra is offered in the school system by dedicated teachers. Mrs. Warner, a teacher for 18 years at Bay High and responsible for the civics and history club, will be leaving the system in January for Florida with her husband. She received a bouquet of roses from the students in appreciation. Our school systems still have those teachers who give just that little extra, and we wish Mrs. Warner well in her new endeavors.

Bits 'n pieces

We received a Christmas letter from Carol Gaudet in the jungles of Ecuador.

Ms. Gaudet, wife of the late Bill Gaudet of Waveland, was a teacher at Waveland Elementary before moving to Ecuador.

She says she teaches the younger children at Limoncocha English School and her residence has all the comforts of home such as running water with the notation of 'we boil it' and electricity from a generator.

We wonder how the teachers in our local schools would feel if the students brought monkeys to school as pets as they do in Ecuador.

The six students taught by Ms. Gaudet are all children of missionaries. Supplies are brought in by a DC-3 twice a week.

We wish Carol success in her endeavors and if someone wants her address, just give us a call.

At the Echo we received a special surprise Monday evening while holding a small party and employee gift exchange.

We had Christmas Carols played and sung to us by Bay High Tiger Pride band members.

Glen Page, band director, and several members of the Tiger Pride were touring the city playing and singing Christmas Carols.

The best thing that has ever happened to the Tiger Pride was its selection as Mississippi's representative to the annual Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D.C.

We hope the community will support these fine young people so they will be able to raise the money necessary to make the trip.

Keep up the fine work, Tiger Pride!

We received a call Tuesday night from a resident of Sunset St. in Bay St. Louis telling us there was a group of young boys and girls in the neighborhood going door to door singing Christmas Carols.

This is a mighty fine thing for our young people to do, and possibly more of it should be encouraged by parents.

We have some mighty fine young men and women as residents of our county and in our school systems today and we are proud of them.

Tomorrow we celebrate the Birth of Christ, a very special day for Christians throughout the world.

We hope the true meaning of Christmas will be remembered by each and carried throughout the coming year.

Our youngsters are the ones who really appreciate Christmas and we hope Santa does not forget any child.

Many individuals, organizations, clubs, businesses and governmental bodies have made special efforts to help those less fortunate, and each of them should be remembered in our prayers.

We wish a Blessed and Merry Christmas to everyone.

NEWS

prospects, there is a dark side to the picture.

"That dark side was identified in a recent report of Mississippi's forestry resources by the Mississippi Economic Council.

The MEC report revealed several problems must be eliminated if the state is to realize its full economic potential in forestry. These problems relate to the near marginal point the state has reached regarding the growth-harvest ratio in timberland.

For example, pine growth increased 12.5 percent in the state from 1967-77, but harvesting increased 36 percent. It is likely that the state will be at a break-even point by 1982.

Other factors include a loss of productive acreage owners are cutting timber without planned regeneration.

A recent MEC survey among municipal officials indicates growing concern about public employee union activity. Of those expressing an opinion, more than half identified unionization as a present or potential problem for their municipalities. The survey was part of a study, "An Update: Public Employee Unions — Viable and Vocal in Mississippi."

Graham, an Indianola businessman, explained that the state supreme court has held that municipalities have only those powers which are expressly conferred by statute, along with those necessary implications and incidentals which cannot delegate its authority to a labor union or any other group.

"It seems clear that any attempt by a municipality to delegate any part of its duty to set working conditions and salaries through bargaining with employees representatives would produce a legally invalid agreement," he said. "Without specific legislative authority, it would seem that municipalities may engage in collective bargaining with employees at their own risk."

The MEC leaders said the council emphasizes a clear distinction between public employees and those in the private sector and believe the public interest is not served by affording public employees the privilege of collective bargaining or strikes.

"Mississippi should consider enactment of a reforestation tax credit program similar to the federal program."

"The state should increase fire and insect-disease control efforts."

MEC OPPOSES PUBLIC EMPLOYEE UNIONS

Public employee union activity has increased dramatically in recent years and the Mississippi Economic Council has called for public legislation prohibiting collective bargaining and strikes by public employees.

'Christmas Carol' Cogitations

Children's hearts skipped a beat for IT IS TODAY was attained.
And in all the villages, cities and towns
Smiles brightened up faces that wore yesterdays frowns.

Bathing in the North Pole, our elated Santa in a scintillating toy shop was left to himself.
What looks he exhibited, while perched on his seat,
That joyful jingle he sang, as he lay in his seat.

Far off in the distance choir sang of good cheer,
Reunited with the chorus, he began to sing.
His coat full of gifts, he turned and began to sing.

Then he opened a door to the chilly night air.

Even though growing trees were in front of him,

He took a deep breath and began to sing.

He sang of the love of family and friends.

"Don't take chances. Don't give your child easily breakable playthings, those with sharp, pointed edges, or toys with projectiles that could be shot into someone's face," he said.

"After careful selection, the next important element to consider when giving toys is supervision of their use."

"It's vital that parents explain how best to operate or use toys safely... and then keep an eye on children while they are playing. Remember, children can be surprisingly creative; that is, they can take an otherwise safe toy and turn it into a dangerous weapon," Mr. Naber concluded.

Even popular toys such as chemistry sets and those that launch rubber-tipped projectiles, can be dangerous if used improperly or without supervision. A child may, for example, pull rubber tips off toys or inadvertently splash harmful chemicals into his or her own face or a playmate's eyes.

A few words to the wise can not only save the day during this holiday season, but maybe even save the eyesight of your child now and throughout the year.

Carefully check out all toys before purchasing. Buy toys that suit the child's age range.

Show the child how to use the gift wisely and safely.

Older children should keep their more advanced toys out of reach of younger members of the family.

Watch how the child handles the toy for clues to the amount of supervision needed.

SOIL TEST
Now that the crops are almost out, it's a good time to start thinking about how we can improve next year's crops. One of the best things you can do now to start next spring's crop off right is to test your cropland for fertility needs. The procedure is simple, and it's free.

For a lot of us, testing soil for nutrients needs is like getting immunized. We all know that the job needs to be done, but we always seem to find a way to put it off.

A soil test is the only way you can be sure of your soil's lime and fertilizer needs. Lime is needed badly on 2.6 million acres of cropland in Mississippi and that includes some acres in Hancock County. This is a perfect time to apply lime to row crops, because it gives the lime plenty of time to react with the soil before planting next spring.

By soil testing now, you not only get the results back sooner to make lime and fertilizer decisions, you also beat the spring rush when you'll be busy getting ready to plant. The print-out will give you lime amounts you need to correct soil acidity and fertilizer needs for your particular crops. If you suspect have a test for that, too. Soil testing is a free service of the Extension Soil Testing Department at Mississippi State University. We have all the materials and details you need here at the county Extension office. All you have to do is take the sample and send it in.

LEAVES FOR MULCH
Do you consider falling leaves or pine straw in your yard to be a nuisance? Put these materials to good use by saving them for mulching around flowers, shrubs, and young shade trees.

A four-to-six-inch layer of mulch around flowers and shrubs will protect the delicate roots from freezing this winter and from getting too hot next summer. Mulching helps conserve soil moisture for plant roots. This will reduce your watering chores next summer and fall. It also reduces weed problems by serving as a barrier to weeds.

Keep mulch and the planting area moist during dry periods to avoid the danger of fire around wooden structures and homes.

RSVP report

BY THERESA JAMES
RSVP DIRECTOR

REMEMBERED

The RSVP staff would like to take this opportunity at this happy time of the year to thank all of the 300 volunteers who have given many hours of their time and talents to the community and those less fortunate, for they have the true Christmas spirit.

The past year has been most successful for us. Volunteers have given more hours than ever before and although our money has been stretched very thin, we have still accomplished our goals.

We have taken volunteers on both short and long trips, which have been most enjoyable.

Our annual awards luncheon was attended by many. We had open house for Christmas and the door prizes were won by Blanche Collins and Buford Taylor.

The annual bazaar in November was also successful because of donations and hard work by volunteers.

We are able to use the money from this bazaar to sell their work. Volunteers obtain some of the many things needed to make the program successful and are not included in our budget for the year.

For the past year volunteers have faithfully manned the Hospitality Center in Waveland, taken blood pressures every Tuesday in Bay St. Louis and Waveland, served meals every day, taught classes at the multi-purpose center to other seniors and also devoted extra time at home to accomplish projects needed in class.

Volunteers enjoy helping in the two craft shops for seniors to sell their work.

MASH: TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING?
Throughout television history very few programs have struggled through the ratings war, achieved quality and respectability, and then called it quits during the prime of their programming.

The Mary Tyler Moore Show comes immediately to mind with "The Fugitive" a close second:

Who will ever forget a subdued Mary Richards as she returned to an empty newsroom and delicately turned off the lights. Or the breathless verdict that it was the one-armed man who had killed Dr. Kimble's wife.

But these two shows are exceptions to the general rule. Most programs hang on, decaying and losing their audience until, finally, the network terminates the series. This kind of sour ending isn't befitting a show like MASH.

MASH has struggled through those long prime time nights when only a handful of people watched, and it has achieved the highest quality in network programming—not to mention Emmys galore. But the time has come to stop the war in Korea.

We've seen the show evolve from the slapstick, uporous humor between Hawkeye and Trapper John as they sipped homemade gin in The Swamp. We've cringed at the soporific romance between Frank and Hot Lips. And, yes, we've laughed especially when an emotional Radar informed us that "Lt. Col. Henry Blake's plane was shot down over the Sea of Japan...it spun in, there were no survivors."

Replacements were down in and, beheadingly at first, we welcomed them. Col. Potter, a painter and noscavver, gradually erased Blake's memory and became a grandfather to us all. R.J. added maturity, and a practical-joke sense of wit.

Charles Emerson Winchester III was the antithesis of Frank Burns—a knob from Boston who, although pompous, was skilled doctor and easier to like than Frank. After all, Frank was so easy to hate.

And then it happened. Radar, looking through the small square window of the operating room, spotted Hawkeye. Hawkeye pulled his hands from the operation and raised a bloody glove to his forehead. Radar returned to the saline. He then rolled in an Army cot and looking straight ahead told the driver, "Let's get out of here." Now his small head clad in a green knit cap, a long pipe in the bottom-left-hand corner, looking up at the "MASH" logo in the MASH theme and credits began rolling.

Everyone acknowledges the fact that MASH could have lasted had Hawkeye been given more time, but the show would have when Radar left. But Radar, Radar was a military hero and generally the most intelligent and brave wild schemes devised by the Navy in Number One.

Since the end of the show the changes are noticeable—the physical ones, most of all. The younger generation of Radar's contemporaries are candidates for the soap opera. We've seen the growth of the capital "H" in the curriculum of the show.

What remains is the same—Hawkeye, the good doctor, and the rest of the cast. The show is, however, gone, and the original cast members are scattered across the country, some in the military, some in the medical field, some in the business world, some in the entertainment industry, and some in the political arena.

wine for the audience's intelligence. MASH now wants to preach evidence. Winchester's recent remark, "but I will not bear false witness to ruin the career of a dear, dear friend,"

Forgot that MASH has finished in the Top 10 in the Nielsen ratings for the past couple of years. Those same ratings also put Three's Company, Fantasy Island and Dallas into the Number 1 position.

The times have changed and it's time for these talented people to take their abilities elsewhere. Pack up the C-rations and tents and surgical gauze and head for syndication where generations can enjoy the humor and profundity and feeling as it was meant to be.

The MASH cult has been established. Just as shows like Star Trek and Andy Griffith gathered diehard fans, MASH has gained a faithful following. Now, let the fans enjoy what excellent writers, directors, and actors have wrought.

Sounds of the hunt echo through Diamondhead

Sounds of the hunt echoed through Diamondhead Saturday as the community's 4-H club sponsored its Second Annual English Fox Hunt for riders from Louisiana and around the state.

Maria Lott, organizer of the event, noted the hunt followed strict English tradition. Included in the day's activities were the traditional hearty breakfast at the Diamondhead Country Club followed by the "Blessing of the Hounds."

Wine was served to adults for the blessing conducted by Father Tom Stepanki of the Annunciation Church in the Kilm. Adolescents master the "Passing of the Stirrup Cup" with grape juice.

The weather was perfect, others agreed about a sunny day and temperatures which dropped to sub-freezing.

Over 45 riders from Covington, La., Pascagoula, Ocean Springs, Jackson, Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Diamondhead participated in the hunt which wound more than three miles along trails and powerlines in Diamondhead.

The Honorary Hunterman who rode the only western-style horse for the event replaced the real fox with a scented bag dragged behind his horse across the rugged terrain.

The pursuing hunters and dogs never lost the trail and no accidents were reported.

Lott labeled the day a complete success.

A saltwater license: Is Mississippi ready?

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is reprinted by permission from the December, 1981 issue of Marine Briefs, monthly publication of the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs.

All of the states individually require a fisherman to buy a license to fish in fresh water, but obviously there will be stubborn resistance to a saltwater angling license because only a handful of states have one.

In the case of Mississippi, Dr. Richard Leard, director of the Bureau of Marine Resources (BMR), has advocated a saltwater license since shortly after he assumed that post in March 1977.

Before the 1978 session of the state legislature, Leard had brought the matter up to the coastal lawmakers and again over the next several years, "but we have never been able to get the people's support for it," he states.

In 1979, a bill was introduced to require anyone who fished in Mississippi waters to buy a fishing license, but the measure died on the calendar of the Senate (after being approved by the Game and Fish Committee) because the coastal legislators could not resolve their concerns. In 1981, a bill to institute a saltwater angling license was introduced in the House, but died in committee.

"Again," says Leard, "our people weren't ready for it." Support A License

For a year or more, the BMR has been asking people at fishing rodeos on the coast to fill out a questionnaire on the subject of a saltwater angling license. Between 70 and 80 percent of those responding support a license, in one form or another, Leard states.

"So now the problem is one of coordination in order to get the lobbying groups to contact their representatives and senators."

"My job," he added, "is to develop a consensus of what kind of license fishermen want and can live with. Most local fishermen do not want to be required to buy a license unless all kinds of recreational fishermen are required to, including sailmakers, cast netters, shrimpers, crabbers, hook and line fishermen, and party boat fishermen. Still others contend that licensing will hurt tourism."

Leard is not as interested in the financial aspect of the saltwater license as he is in the management information aspect.

He believes that public opinion has changed concerning the saltwater license. In the past, it was seen as just another tax, but now more and more people are seeing it as a definite tool we can use to manage with."

It is impossible to manage fisheries adequately knowing only a portion and in many cases probably the smaller portion, of the traffic. We are faced with a situation where we don't have adequate stock assessment data and we also don't know what the fishing pressure is. If we had more of the other management tools available, it would without either it is virtually impossible," explained Leard.

If you know the effort going into fishing (the number of fishermen and how many fish are caught), you can formulate regulations and management measures that do not let effort expand to the extent that it could damage the presumed maximum sustainable yield, Leard said.

At present that is the goal of most state and federal agency management.

"It is going to require many more years of work by experienced researchers to arrive at reliable identification of finfish stocks," Leard pointed out, "but we can at least begin with the catch in New Revenue Source."

In addition to the Bureau obtaining data through issuing saltwater recreational fishing licenses, the state would benefit, Leard admits, from the revenues generated by license sales. They could provide a sizeable amount of new money (in half a million dollars or more), depending on the cost put on the license.

Leard said that in 1978 he was thinking in terms of a saltwater license costing $2, but today it should probably cost more. The National Marine Fisheries Service has estimated there are 165,000 saltwater anglers in Mississippi.

Some upstate legislators would, no doubt, like to vote for a license and for the price of both the freshwater and saltwater license to be sufficient to carry the State natural resource program.

Others would like to see increases in the saltwater commercial fishing licenses, which have not been raised since before World War II.

If they were all brought up to date to reflect the increased value of the resource and the decreased value per dollar, "said Leard, "I imagine we could be self-sufficient. That would divert to me $1.4 million, but annual appropriation to be spread around among other service type agencies in the state."

It is unlikely, however, that a lawmaker from upstate would introduce legislation primarily attacking a saltwater license if it did not affect him.

Leard is not as interested in the financial aspect of the saltwater license as he is in the management information aspect.

He believes that public opinion has changed concerning the saltwater license. In the past, it was seen as just another tax, but now more and more people are seeing it as a definite tool we can use to manage with."

Comments/Philosophy:

Many people, including politicians involved in what others who use the resource should be willing to pay for that use and those who don't think it should not pay for it. Therefore, under this philosophy, the funding of resource enhancement and conservation shouldn't come out of general tax revenues.

Several Have Licenses

Throughout the states have a freshwater fishing license, only seven states have requirements for a saltwater fishing license. Of those states, only the state of California segregates freshwater and saltwater anglers. The remaining states have either a partial saltwater license or require a universal license that covers both freshwater and saltwater.

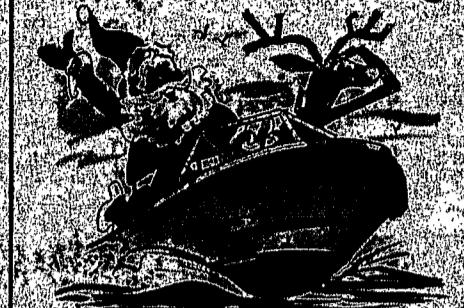

As of last year, W.C. Rhodes of Pensacola, Fla., was quoted in the press as having said, "It is regrettable that (we think) someone with a cane pole fishing or wading in a river would have to have a license and someone fishing off the back of a 100-foot boat would not have to have one."

State park cabin reservations available January 2

Reservations for vacation cabins at Mississippi state parks for 1982 will be accepted beginning Jan. 2, 1982 at 6 a.m. Reservations may be made by contacting the individual park office during regular business hours 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Cabin reservations are not required but are highly recommended.

Aubrey Rozzell, director of the Bureau of Recreation and Parks, Department of Natural Resources, announced three changes in reservation policy for 1982.

1. One person may not make reservations for more than five cabins for one date unless special approval is given by the district manager to accommodate family reunions etc.

2. Reservations can be made for only one set of dates at a time.

3. First priority will be given to in-person requests followed by telephone requests and letters postmarked after January 1, 1982. Minimum stay for the heavy use season (May 1-Sept. 15) is three nights. There is two night minimum during other times of the year. Maximum stay during the heavy use season is 14 days.

State Parks with vacation cabins are: Clarkesville, Doxey, Holly Springs.

George Payne Cossar, Oakland; Holmes County, Durant; Hugh White, Grenada; J.P. Coleman, Iuka; John W. Kyle, Sandis; Leroy Percy, Hollandale; Paul B. Johnson, Hattiesburg; Percy Quin, McComb; Roosevelt, Morton; Tishomingo, Dennis; Tupelo; and Wall-

Wildlife suffering as U.S. faces water shortage

With national water supplies in a fast decline, many experts say Americans are heading for a water crisis that could surpass any resource shortage yet encountered.

But even more vulnerable than humans to dwindling and increasingly polluted water supplies are the animals and plants that make their homes in and around watery environments.

Arizona has more than 800 such watering holes, says the current issue of National Wildlife magazine, and California's perhaps twice as many.

Desert bighorn sheep and deer in those states have already benefited from the man-made cisterns called "guzzlers."

Despite such success stories, however, wildlife in mountain, desert and forest areas is feeling increasing pressure from water deficits.

Free water is disappearing, according to the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

It's happened in Nebraska, where a proposal to divert water from tributaries of the Platte River for power and agricultural uses posed a serious threat to many fish and mammals.

There, the National Wildlife Federation filed suit to stop the plan, which affected several endangered species including the whooping crane. The case was settled with the creation of a trust fund to protect the threatened wildlife.

In other places, animals and plant life face the menace of pollution. According to National Wildlife, brook trout, bullheads, salamanders, frogs, mayflies and zooplankton have all but disappeared from upstate New York because of acid rain that has turned fresh water lakes into pools of water with the acidity of vinegar.

Acid rain—precipitation that becomes highly acidic as it falls through polluted air—is now threatening other lakes and waterways across the country.

The dilemma is only one facet of the water resources problem—a problem that many experts say will end in disaster if Americans don't awaken to the need for sound and large scale water management.

It certainly is not a question of not having enough water to begin with, says National Wildlife. More than four trillion gallons of rain or snow fall on the United States every day. Rather, it's a problem of contaminated supplies, of inefficient irrigation practices, of uneven distribution (North Carolina gets 50 inches of rain a year, while Nevada gets a mere nine inches), of failing water systems full of leaks that lose up to half of the water that flows through pipes, and of conflicting jurisdictional claims to some bodies of water.

For instance, agriculture, by far the biggest water consumer in the country, wastes at least half of the water it irrigates with, reports National Wildlife.

The culprits are inefficient and outdated irrigation methods, such as open-ditch irrigation, which delivers only 50 percent of its water to plants.

But in most parts of the U.S., water is so cheap that farmers have no incentive to save.

In other regions, groundwater—the underground supply of water—is in trouble. Where droughts have dried up surface water supplies, people have gone underground for more water—and now they're draining the resource faster than it can be replenished. Man is emptying some supplies, according to National Wildlife, that Nature has been building for more than 25,000 years.

And as for the most immediate problem—pollution—groundwater simply cannot be cleaned up like surface waters. When industrial solvents or gasoline seep into well supplies, the only solution is to abandon the well field.

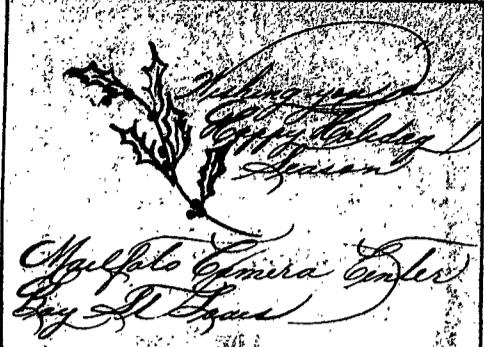

Every living creature pays a price for declining quality and quantity of water, says National Wildlife.

But Americans can no longer afford to let wildlife fend for itself where water is concerned. Instead, the magazine suggests that man should begin to take corrective steps in an environment that he chose to alter in the first place.

There are few gifts more heartwarming at Christmas time — or any other time, for that matter — than something homemade from the kitchen, a fragrant, tasty offering that tells the recipient you've given not only a present, but a bit of yourself and your time these busy days.

One of the easiest and tastiest concoctions for Christmas giving is the old-time Pecanine Graille (Granley) or Sugared Pecans. A Creole delicacy sure to please the palate. Here's

PACANINE GRAILLE

1 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
2 cups pecan halves

Break the sugar and the water slightly apart to a slow boil. Cook until combined and dissolved (to prevent sugar from crystallizing), add the pecan halves and boil until the syrup coats the pecans.

Add the pecan halves and vanilla extract to the syrup until the pecans are coated with the sugar. Turn out on waxed paper; let cool. Separate the halves as they cool. You may double or triple the recipe as you need. These keep well, and make attractive gifts boxed or piled in beribboned glass containers. Equally delicious are

SALTED PECA

1/2 stick butter
1 tablespoon salt
1 pound shelled pecans
1/2 teaspoon white pepper

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Melt the butter in a shallow baking pan. Add the pecans and stir well. Bake for 20 minutes, stirring every four or five minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Let the nuts cool in the pan.

And if they're for me or I'm around when you're doing this, add a generous dash of cayenne pepper and Tabasco sauce.

Add the pecan halves and vanilla extract to the syrup until the pecans are

Underwriters Laboratories offers free Christmas Safety Checklist

Christmas is a time for decorating the tree, crackling fires, toys wrapped up in brightly colored packages, gaily colored strings of lights and families gathered together to celebrate the season.

Christmas also is a time for fires, many of which will be traced back to Christmas trees and decorations, and many of which can be avoided.

"In the hustle and bustle of the season, it's easy to forget common sense safety rules," warns Robert Seelbach, Underwriters Laboratories vice president and chief electrical engineer.

Underwriters Laboratories

Inc. (UL) is an independent not-for-profit organization testing for public safety.

Among other products, UL tests indoor and outdoor Christmas tree lights, artificial trees and electrical decorations for a variety of safety features.

"Many fires are caused by damaged light strings, overloaded circuits and improper use of decorations. At UL, we try to make these products as safe as possible, but consumers have to do their part too," says Seelbach.

The National Fire Data Center reports approximately $2,000 fires killed or injured more than three thousand people and caused about $40 million dollars in property damage last December.

Seelbach says consumers can avoid fires if they use simple precautions. "A spark or a hot wire can ignite a dried out tree. Check each string of lights carefully—if you find a break in the wiring, frayed insulation, a broken bulb or a defective plug, don't use it; replace the string," Seelbach says.

Overloading a circuit with too many lights also can cause a fire. "Read manufacturer's instructions carefully and don't use more than the recommended number of lights on one circuit," says Seel-bach. To help consumers with Christmas safety, UL engineers have compiled a "Christmas Safety Checklist." Seelbach suggests consumers use the checklist to improve safety at holiday time. "The checklist covers information on decorating the house, artificial and real trees, and other safety tips for the holidays. The checklist is a poster featuring Santa and his elves and is a good education tool for children also."

The UL "Christmas safety Checklist" is available free from UL. Requests for the checklist should be sent to: UL, Dept. A, P.O. Box 1324, Northbrook, Illinois 60062.

Book Review

Mississippi, 1990
From University Press of Mississippi

Mississippi is on the verge of transformation and modernization, and in a new book from University Press of Mississippi a group of specialists discuss how the state can prepare for the 1990s.

In Mississippi 1990, edited by Walter M. Mathews, thinkers from a variety of disciplines offer diverse forecasts of life in Mississippi just decade from now.

Their projections are presented from the base of Mississippi history, and they speak principally of politics, economics, and education as the most vital concerns of Mississippians of the 1990s.

Among the discussions, which are introduced by a foreword by U.S. Senator Thad Cochran, are The Future of Representative Government, by Vagn K. Hansen; Inventing the Future, by May Maury Harding; Digging Up the Future, by Lucy C. Turnbull; Which Way, Mississippi? by Gil Carmichael; Economic and Political Power, by Aaron Henry; Will Liberal Arts Education By Flourishing? by Robert E. Bergmark; The Ultimate Legacy, by Governor William Winter; and other assessments by Gerald Blessey, Charles Granville Hamilton, C. Thompson Waster, and Roger Johnson, Jr.

TELEPHONE PIONEERS OF AMERICA—Telephone Pioneers of America, retired employees of Bell Telephone, gathered at the Pan American Yacht Club recently for a Christmas celebration. This year is especially favorable for numerous projects which benefit the public and especially the blind and handicapped. Included in their achievements this year is the development of a talking book for blind people, and an electric squirrel, which climbs a tree in response to sound. The squirrel is used to induce deaf children to make noises—the first step in learning how to talk. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Mrs. Margaret Hicks of Bay St. Louis was winner of a party pack awarded in a recent fund-raising program by the Bon N'or Aims carnival club of Bay St. Louis.

Lionel Bradley, club president, said the fund-raising effort was "highly successful." He noted proceeds will be used in the club's participation in the 1962 Bay St. Louis Mardi Gras celebration.

Largest Tree

One of the largest Christmas trees ever displayed was a 67-year-old white fir measuring 96 feet, two inches. It was displayed in Pershing Square in Los Angeles in 1948.

Moellmann to play dedication of restored Hattiesburg organ

Nationally known theatre organist Jack Moellmann of Fort Monmouth, N.J., is to perform at the first public exhibition of Hattiesburg's restored Morton Organ in the city's Saenger Center.

The unveling of the 102 organ is scheduled for Dec. 20 at 7 p.m.

Moellmann, who started in music at the age of 7, has performed at Westminster Abbey in London, the Pantheon in Rome, and the Carnegie Hall Cinema Theatre in New York.

He is listed in Who's Who, The Dictionary of International Biography, and Notable Americans. Moellmann became well known throughout the southeast while he was assigned to Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi during the mid-70's. He is a member of the American Theatre Organ Society, with chapter affiliations in Mississippi, Alabama, Connecticut, New Jersey, and New York.

The concert will be the first public function to be held in Hattiesburg's newly-restored Saenger Theatre.

In fall, The Front Street Community Center and The Saenger are being renovated, and tied together as a Civic Center Complex.

Tickets for the performance will be $2 and will be available at the door or advance ticket information is available by calling 263-3570.

ON YOUR GROCER'S SHELF—These cereal boxes look like the real thing but were designed by students in the University of Southern Mississippi's creative advertising class. In this project students were told to come up with cereal appealing to children and Sugar Rays, Space Rocks, Star Bites, Nana Nuggets and Circuit Rings were the results.

Pre-professional reviews offered Saturdays at USM

A Pre-Professional Review will be conducted at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg on six upcoming Saturdays for students planning to enter professional school.

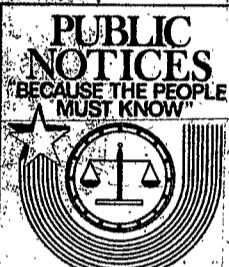

Registration will continue through December for the review, which begins Feb. 6.

All interested students are eligible to register by contacting the USM Department of Conferences and Workshops, review sponsors. On March 13, last review day, two hours will be allotted students to question specific review areas of reading comprehension, mathematics, biology, organic chemistry, general chemistry and physics.

USM professors participating in the review are Mylan Bethune, Ray Flose, Annum Griffin, Emory Howell, Frank Moore, Don Norris, Ray Scheetz and Larry Smith.

Students may call the department at 266-4265 or write USM Southern Station Box 5056, Hattiesburg, Miss. 39401.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Mississippi, will receive sealed bids to be filed with the Clerk of this Board on or before 10:00 a.m. Monday, January 4, 1962, for the right to purchase for cash the following listed materials or services for the period beginning at the date of acceptance of said bid until December 31, 1962, the following:

1. Gasoline—regular and premium (specify with certificate attached amount of octane in each), lubricating oil, Number Two (No. 2) diesel fuel, grease to be delivered as and when needed to county owned vehicles and airports designated by the prospective bidder, are cautioned to bid a stable price for the cost of oil and merchandise, an alternative bid may be made for the cost of oil and merchandise at time of delivery with given certificate.

2. Tires and tubes, including those for automotive trucks, tractors, road grading machines and others. Bid must be based on furnishing first grade tires and tubes to be delivered to points designated in Hancock County by the Board.

3. Grade marker posts, concrete and related materials.

4. Metal culverts, all sizes, prices to be given by metal culvert manufacturers and/or dealers.

5. Landmark Finance Corporation of Mississippi, beneficiary, which Deed of Trust is of record in the office of the Chancery Clerk of Hancock County, truck load and less, points designated in Hancock County by the Board.

6. Concrete Culverts, both road and sewer, delivered FOB truck line.

7. Points of land, mineral interest in the same, owned by Hancock County, Mississippi, will be received, or before 6:00 p.m. central standard time, January 12, 1962, at the Office of the Superintendent of Schools, Pass Christian Municipal Separate School District, 701 East North Street, Pass Christian, Mississippi, 39061, and you are invited to submit sealed bids specifying the terms to be paid by the lessee for oil lease.

The Board will retain one-half mineral rights in the oil lease.

8. The right to lease oil to oil companies, A.W. Information, and oil obtained from the Superintendent, 701 East North Street, Pass Christian, Mississippi, 39061, and you are invited to submit sealed bids specifying the terms to be paid by the lessee for oil lease.

The bonus specified in bids should be calculated upon the total net acreage of 50.00 acres, more or less.

All sealed bids must be accompanied by cashier's check or certified check payable to the Superintendent of Schools, Pass Christian Municipal Separate School District, immediately upon acceptance of the bid. The form of the oil, gas and mineral lease as prescribed by the Board of Trustees of the Pass Christian Municipal Separate School District and the terms to be prescribed by said Board, including the liability to be assumed by the lessee for the rental of the land to be leased to the lessee and the primary terms of the lease is now on file and available for inspection in the Office of the Superintendent of Schools, Pass Christian Municipal Separate School District in Pass Christian, Mississippi, where bids may be received by all interested parties.
